

Abstract Art

This sucks.

You just got back to the city and your office is in a terrible state – you can barely recognize the place underneath all the useless clutter. Before you left you thought it was at least presentable; maybe you were too busy making slides to notice. You take stock: soda cans and papers are everywhere. Time to clean this mess up.

But what's this? On top of some of your old papers, you find three strange drawings...

